the French Coffee House vs. P. J. Coogan, lessee, a decision was made in the State Court Saturday against the defendant, it being deelded that the lessee should pay for the rent of the house during the war, when it was notenable, because of the bombardment. The amount in question is about $7000. We learn that an appeal will be taken.

A similar decision was rendered some months since concerning the rent of the Charleston Hotel, under sımılar circumstances.

AN INSURANCE VETERAN RETTRES.—The New York Journal of Commerce of Saturday has the following in reference to a native Carolinian, who has many friends in Charleston :

who has many friends in Charleson:
Colonel Richard M. Lathers has retired from the Great W. stern Marine Insurance Company, over which he has presided so ably since its organization, and John A. Parker, Esq., the first Vice President, has been elected in his place. Colonel Lathers has been an able, libfirst Vice President, has been elected in his place. Colonel Lathers has been an able, liberal and indelatigable executive officer, and the eminent success of the company has been due in no small degree to his wise management. The has a very considerable private fortune, and the conduct of his private affairs calls for all of the time he feels willing to devote to business pursuits. During the thirteen years of Colonel Lathers' administration, the Great Western his earned over six million dollars in net prefits.

AN INTERESTING PRESENTATION.

A SERVICE OF PLATE PRESENTED TO CAPTAIN MOMILLAN, OF THE "CITY POINT."

Proposed Revival of the Marine Schoolship.

Some years before the beginning of the war the Marine Schoolship Lodebar was bought and put into successful operation. The project, in its first beginning, met with every kind of discouragement, but at last the good brig was bought and took aboard a number of toys who had theretofore been wandering about the streets of Charleston. These received a sound commercial and marine education, it being the aim of the Board of Trustees to qualify every boy for any position to which as a seaman he might be called. This was the first mercantile-marine schoolship ever in operation, and it is a pleasing fact that South Carolina, which had the first long line of railroad; which invented the steam plough; which had the first thorough system of common school education, and which first applied iron to the purposes of marine defence, should also have been the foremost, by the institution of a marine schoolship and a sailor's home, to show her appreciation of the worth and importance of the sailor. The schoolship was, we believe, mainly the work of the Rev. W. B. Yates, of this city. After a while earnest assistants came to help him, and when the brig was bought and moored off the Battery, there were among the trustees the names of W. C. Bee, Heriot, Robt. Mure, R. Yeadon and W. B. Yates. The school soon became a success, and had in all about sixty graduates.

At a meeting held on February 6, 1861, a letter was read from Commodore M. Berry, in which that gallant seaman said that he had given a silver trumpet as a prize to the first graduate of the marine school to whom the command of a ship should be given. This was the cause of the meeting held yesterday aboard the steamer City Point, at which were present: Robert Mure, Esq., Colo nel J. D. Aiken, R. Caldwell, A. P. Caldwell, W. C. Bee, Captain Crowell, Commodore Coxetter, the Rev. W. B. Yates, Captain Nowell, Lieutenant Harleston, and others. The meeting was called to order by Robert Mure, Esq., who said that the silver trumpet presented by Commodore Berry had been sent up the country with the family plate, and had there been gobbled by the notorious Sherman. But it had seemed to the trustees that some testimonial was due the graduate who had first fulfilled the conditions of the trust, and he therefore called on the Rev. W. B. Yates to present to Captain George McMillan, of the steamer "City Point," the reward to which he was justly entitled.

The Rev. Mr. Yates, in making the presentation, spoke most eloquently of the energetic assistance given by Mr. John Caldwell in establishing the schoolship, and paid a merited tribute to the gallantry and skill of the recipient-Captain McMillan.

Mr. Yates then presented to Captain McMillan a very handsome set of solid silver forks and spoons, engraved with his name, when Colonel J. D. Aiken, in behalf of Captain Mc-Millan, spoke as follows : -

I esteem it a peculiar privilege to be permitted to participate in this interesting ceremony, so creditable to the parties concerned; to the committee, who have cherished and so faithfully carried out the benevolent design of tast successful navigator, the late Captain Berry; to you; sir, who are so eminently the sailor's friend, and who have exhibited your characteristic zeal on this occasion; and to the unassuming, but not the less deserving and skilful seaman, Captain M.Millan, whose modest merit has so properly secured to him this handsome testim his at your hands.

Exhibitions of the kind, at all times extermely pleasing in themselves, are valuable simulants to the friendless and solitary toiler in whatever field; he feels that there are good men, even among the multitude of evil and selfish, who watch over and reward the worthy laborer; especially encouraging is this recognition of humble but virtuous toil to those who go down to the sea in ships, who brays the I esteem it a peculiar privilege to be permit

The healths were drunk, in silence, of General Stephen Elliott and Commodore Berry, and among the toasts that followed were: Mr. Robert Mure, the Agents of the Florida line, Commander Coxetter, Captain dle, no one suspected him, and he continued Crowell, Parson Yates, and the Engineer of the City Point. All were responded to, and the fives and tens of his many acquaintances anecdotes to which the occasion gave rise proved the necessity of recording as rapidly as possible the stray leaves which will make up the most interesting chapters in the history of

> In the District Court .- In the case of ex parte A. Mendelson, in re George C. Robinson, the court, on motion of Joseph T. Carr, solicitor for petitioning oreditor, ordered that the petitioners be dismissed, the cases having been settled.

In the case of ex parte George K. Rvan, in re Robert Menus, a petition to sell real estate, it was ordered that it be confirmed.

The petition of John G. Lipford, of Martin's, for a final discharge from bankruptcy, was referred to the Registrar, C. J. Jaeger, and final hearing will be had before this court on the 30th of July. In the Circuit Court .- In the case of the fendant.

THE LOST DIAMOND PIN.—It will be remembered, that on or about the 24th of December last, Mrs. Thos. N. Gadsden lost on the street a breastpin containing twenty-eight diamonds, and valued at eight hundred dollars. On the inside of the pin was engraved the name, "Thos. N. Gads en." Of it nothing, as we learn, was heard from the time of the losing until the 24th of April last, when Mrs. Gadsden was informed that a negro woman named Mary Austin, living near the corner of Washington and Inspection streets, had found it. The woman, on being asked about it, and having the pin described to her, said that she had it. No legal steps were taken to secure the pin until yesterday, when a warrant was issued by Justice Mackey, for the arrest of the woman and her son, Wm. Fuller. Fuller stated that he had sold the pin to a storekeeper, on Kingstreet, for twenty-three dollars and a plain gold ring. Fuller was then taken before the storekeeper, who not only denied having purchased the pin, but asserted that he had never seen the boy before.

After a hearing of the case, Justice Mackey dismissed the accused on the ground that an action could not lie under the circumstances.

CRUMBS .- The Ladies' Memorial Association will meet at the Widow's Home at six o'clock this afternoon. Every night, between the hours of seven and twelve o'clock, a gang of negroes assemble on King-street, above Morris, and annoy the people in the neighborhood and the passers by with their loud, profane and indecent conversation.

If the XIX Century Publication Company do not have a care, they will be indicted by "the powers that be" for caricaturing their weak points. The illustrations of the forthcoming July number are entitled, "Scott's Tactics-revised edition printed in colors. The new militia have a place in the picture this time.

The Mayor vesterday disposed of ten devo tees of "fusil oil." It is generally believed that the negroes will soon fill the petty offices of the United States Court. The car horses are now supplied with the Dexter horse bonnet, and they are said to work to a charm. The gold cross and chain raffled on Thursday vening last, by the Sisters of Mercy, for the benefit of the Female Orphan Asylum, in Queen-street, was won by Mrs. C. Dunn. The

THE MONUMENTAL INSTITUTE .- The Baltimore Gazette, of the 19th inst., gives the following account of a musical and literary soires given by the scholars of the Monumental Institute, among whom are several young ladies from this State:

from this State:

A brilliant musical and literary soiree was given last evening by the scholars of the Monumental Institute, Miss Matchett principal, at the school building, corner of Monument and St. Paul streets. The elegant parlors were adorned with evergreens and flowers, arranged artistically around the room. Special invitations had been extended to some two hundred ladies and gentlemen, who filled the hall and parlors. The following original and selected readings were given by the purils: Virginia, salutatory, Miss E. Barbour; The May Queen (Tennyson,) Miss Bessie Rice; The Street Vocalist (Hood) Miss E. The exercises, which were of a most interesting nature, were interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, closing with a grand chorus. The entertainment was a complete success, and was apparently highly appreciated by the refined assemblage present.

THE MAN WHO ATTEMPTED TO SELL MORBIS' ISLAND .- A brief mention of an attempt to sell Morris' Island, made by a swindler in the North, has already appeared. From the Providence, Rhode Island, Herald, we learn that about the first of this year a person claiming Charleston, S. C., as his home, and calling himself Colonel Andrew J. Bodgers, went to Providence and put up at the Aldrich House. best cigars and drank the choicest liquors-all on tick. Being possessed of overpowering cheek, and showing no appearance of anything like shrewdness or ability to carry out a swinhis course without interruption, borrowing and always forgetting to pay. he was the owner of Morais' Island, and selected Mr. Frank G. Allen as a broker to assist him in the disposal of it. At the same time he deposited in the hands of Mr. Allen a draft, drawn by himself, and accepted by an ostensible party, J. P. Klingle, of Washington, evident an earnest desire to re-establish, as D. C. He informed Mr Kilborn that he had deposited that amount-$3500-in money with so much in reclaiming and utilizing the wan- Mr. Allen, but that it would be detrimental to dering youth of our city. After spending some his interests in the sale of his property to

He gave drafts on responsible parties, which were dishonored and his villany was exposed. Rodgers while there was engaged ostensibly in recruiting for the Cuban army, and made several ineffectual attempts in New York to raise money from the Junta.

Rodgers is a precious rascal. In 1861 he enelisted as Andrew J. Livingston, in Company G, 3d Georgia Regiment. He attempted to desert, but was caught and sentenced to be shot. The papers of the court-martial were lost, and he escaped the shooting, but in 1862 was drummed out of service. Shortly after, by some rascality, he obtained a captain's commission, and raised a company of cavalry, which soon became a terror to all good people on account of their robberies and other lawless acts committed on the people. Rodgers kops has headquarters and and an office in Richmond, where he also carried on the substitute business. In 1865 Rodgers went to New York from Savannah, taking with him forged railroad receipts for a large quantity of cotton on the line of the Gulf Railroad. On these bogus receipts he obtained a large amount of money, and returned to Savannah with the agents of the parties to whom he had sold the cotton, and to whom he was to make the deliveries. A steamer was chartered and everything made ready for the trip, when he said he had forgotten some important papers, and went for them telling the captain to go ahead, that he would take his buggy and cut across the neck and intercept the boat at Thunderbolt, only four miles by land, while it was distant by water some sixteen or eighteen miles. The boat left and so did Rodgers, and that was the last that the agents heard of him or of the cotton.
